

Women in the later medieval economy and related social issues

Thursday, 17 September 2009

Wolfson Room, Institute of Historical Research
Senate House, Malet Street, London WC1E 7HU

A one-day workshop sponsored by the Economic and Social Research Council

PROVISIONAL PROGRAMME

- 09:50 Registration and Coffee
- 10:20 Introduction
- 10:30 Jeremy Goldberg (York)
Problematising women in the later medieval economy
- Mavis Mate (Oregon)
The advantages and disadvantages of urban living: examples drawn from south-east towns
- Llinos Smith (Aberystwyth)
Women, property and work in a patrilineal society: the Welsh experience
- 12:00 Lunch
- 13:00 Anne Sutton (Historian Emeritus to the Mercers' Company of London)
London women and the Mercers' Company
- Victoria Raffan (King's College, London)
Women as represented in the certificates of Statute Merchant 1284-1299 and 1384-1399
- Matthew Stevens (CMH/IHR, London)
London women and the economy before and after the Black Death
- 14:30 Tea
- 14:50 Emma Cavell (Oriental College, Oxford)
Marcher women and the economy
- Amanda Richardson (Chichester)
The extent of control of late-medieval English queens consort over their resources: some thoughts
- Caroline Barron (Royal Holloway, University of London)
The popularity of St Zita in late medieval England: a reflection of rising female prosperity?
- 16:20 Round table discussion
- 17:00 End

BOOKING INFORMATION

There is no charge for this workshop and lunch and refreshments will be provided, but places are strictly limited and MUST be booked in advance.

Please contact: Dr Matthew Stevens (Centre for Metropolitan History, IHR, Senate House, Malet Street, London, WC1E 7HU; email: matthew.stevens@sas.ac.uk; tel: 020 7862 8753; fax: 020 7862 8793) giving your name, institutional affiliation, email address and any dietary or disability requirements, no later than 9 September 2009.

